HOME PRODUCTION AND STORAGE OF FRUITS AND VEGETABLES
A PARTIAL LIST OF STATE AND FEDERAL PUBLICATIONS^{1/}

There follows a list of the more popular publications used at present by the State and Federal Extension Services in their educational work on home gardening. The list includes general publications dealing with home production, insect and disease control, and home storage of vegetables and fruits.

The list does not include numerous general publications on commercial fruits and vegetables, nutrition, better living on the farm, family food supply, or methods of canning, freezing, drying, or otherwise preserving these foods. Omitted also of necessity are many of the valuable leaflets and circulars dealing with specific crops or practices, charts, post-card notices, service letters, and calendars used in conducting the horticultural Extension program.

Practically all of these publications are available free to persons within each particular State and also to a limited number of Extension personnel in other States.
